Darcy Whitecrow is Ojibwe and Dakota; he is a member of the Seine River First Nation in Northwestern Ontario, where he lives. Darcy practices traditional lifestyles like trapping, fishing, and ricing, as well as traditional spirituality in both the Midewiwin and Sundance traditions. With his partner, Kim, they have started a non-profit, Grey Raven Ranch, where they have been raising and caring for the Ojibwe Horses for the last decade to help preserve the breed and the tradition of symbiotic interaction with the Ojibwe people.

Darcy is also co-author of 2 Children's books and is working on a third. The books are written in both English and Anishinaabemowin (Ojibwe) and tell the story of the Ojibwe horses.

Over the next year, Darcy will be working with the MFN team in the role of Cultural Facilitator offering cultural activities and ceremonies for MFN Citizens, both in person and virtually.

Before establishing his plan and schedule, Darcy would like to meet with Chief, Council and Citizens to hear more about MFN's priorities and focus.

We hope you will join us in welcoming Darcy!
